

Wednesday 25th February 2015

Newspaper account

SP

A witness discussed that one day, when the Sun was shining Demeter and Persephone were dancing gracefully on a very hot day in a magical enchanted garden filled with perfume smelling flowers. ✓

lovely description to keep interest.

After a while, a witness argued that he saw behind a ^athick branched oak tree Hades (the god of the underworld) watching the glamorous Persephone dancing in the sunlight. He rushed to his brother Zeus and asked him cunningly to come up with a plan so he could fall in love with Persephone. ✓

Next, the witness told us Zeus came up with a marvellous plan, he got a bright colourful flower and threw it over to where Persephone was standing. As soon as it landed with a glimpse of the flower Persephone said she got distracted. She came over and as soon as she touched it she magically got sucked into the dark, creepy underworld.

Meanwhile, upon earth Demeter was crying her eyes out searching far and wide for her beloved daughter. However, back in the underworld Persephone was terribly worried about ~~her~~ mum and Demeter was too because the ~~too~~ earth was turning grey!

• A while later, Hermes told the witness that he had taken Persephone out of the underworld but

a witness
further
added

before they could get out Hades gave Persephone
one beautiful pomegranate. Whilst all this was happen Demeter was asking Apollo if he'd seen her, when Apollo was finished Demeter was so angry while Persephone
was eating the pomegranate down on earth Hades came and said "Because you have eaten something from the underworld you have to stay there ^{for} half a year. I believe how we have the seasons ~~come~~ now is from this myth.